Trade Lane Details

Origin	Destination	Status	Details
North America	LATAM		Demand was slower to rebound post-paandemic, but levels have now returned to normal. Capacity is returning with the return of passenger demand and added PAX flights.
North America	Europe		Demand back to normal levels. Summer travel season saw an increase in passenger capacity, although some of that will be removed for winter season.
North America	Middle East		Flights are operating to most major hubs. Capacity is returning to normal levels, but geopolitical conflict has caused the suspension or disruption of some trade routes..
North America	Asia Pacific		Transpacific trade routes have returned to normal levels, and capacity is returning back to normal as well. TPEB is still slowly returning to 2019 levels, and TPWB capacity is seeing strong demand.
North America	India		Demand and capacity are both returning to normal. Connection points through Europe are causing backlogs as freight as US origin freight is "competing" with EU based freight.
North America	Africa & Turkey		Capacity still decreased to lack of passenger demand and full flight rotations have not yet resumed, but conditions are improved YoY.
